Making Music classes are designed for children ages 5-7. These classes include all types of active music making and learning, including singing, moving, listening, improvisation, and performing on percussion and tonebar instruments. In addition, students will have the opportunity to hear and explore instruments that they could study, such as piano, violin, guitar and cello.

The skills learned in these classes will help to prepare the students for instrumental study, and the exposure to the instruments will help them to make a good choice as to which instrument they might want to learn. These classes are a next logical step for children who are too old for the Early Childhood Music Program, but have the desire to continue their music study.

When
Mondays, 4:30-5:15 p.m. or Thursdays, 5:30-6:15 p.m.
Starts the week of January 25, 2016.

Cost
$168 per semester (10 weeks)

To enroll, please contact the MSU Community Music School at (517) 355-7661 or register online at www.cms.msu.edu